

News In Brief

Castro Wants Talk With JFK

NEW YORK (AP) — Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro indicated a desire to talk with President Kennedy in a filmed interview shown Friday night.

Castro said the recent U.S.-Cuban prisoner swap could be a beginning point for discussions.

He also showed willingness to discuss compensation for the expropriation of American property in Cuba, estimated to be worth between $800 million and $1 billion.

Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., immediately declared there could be no talks until Soviet troops and weapons have been withdrawn from Cuba.

Exiles Plan Cuba Attack

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A Cuban junta in exile was reported nearing completion Friday to mount an all-out thrust against Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

Sabotage, guerrilla warfare, infiltration and subversion of Castro's armed forces and militia, and bombardment or invasion of Cuba from a nearby base figure in the impending counter-revolution, informed exile sources reported.

The blueprint emerged after conferences between U.S. Central Intelligence agents and key exile leaders, they said.

Bosch Calls Haiti Ruler 'Madman'

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — President Juan Bosch charged Friday that Haiti is ruled by a madman. He called on the Organization of American States to investigate his charges that Haiti violates human rights as well as international law.

Bosch said he might withdraw his troops from the frontier if President Francois Duvalier of Haiti guarantees safe conduct to the 22 Haitians who fled to the Dominican Embassy in Port au Prince, Haiti's capital.

JFK, Pearson Start Talks

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) — President Kennedy and Canada's visiting Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson got off to a rollicking start on two days of talks aimed at improving shaky American-Canadian relations.

High on the agenda was the question of whether Pearson's newly installed Liberal party government will carry out a 1959 agreement to arm two Bomarc missile bases in Canada with American-controlled nuclear warheads.

China Forces Russian Arms

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., cautioned the White House Friday against any further major concessions to the Soviet Union in hope of salvaging a nuclear test ban.

But Jackson included an implied criticism in Friday night's speech of the administration's emphasis on disarmament efforts. It is unrealistic, Jackson said, to expect Soviet Premier Khrushchev to rest content "in an inferior military position" or to expect Soviet disarmament while a bellicose Red China represents a growing menace to the Soviet Union.

"Does anyone suppose that Mao will disarm?" Jackson asked.

"Or that the Kremlin will disarm at least as fast?"

Death Demanded For Red Spy

MOSCOW (AP) — The prosecution demanded Friday execution of former Soviet official Oleg Penkovsky and 10 years in prison for his British co-defendant, Grevele Wynne, as spies for Britain and the United States.

Penkovsky gulped and paled, Wynne winced, and Soviet spectators applauded loudly and long.

Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — A resurgence of lower-priced issues sparked a late stock market rally Friday, giving the list its third straight daily rise. Trading was active.

The Dow Jones industrial average ended the day with a gain of 1.33 at 723.30.

Volume was 5.26 million shares compared with 5.63 million Thursday.

Sidewalk Interview

Integration Battle Backed

EDSTROUDSBURG — The average citizen of the Stroudsburgs—whether white or Negro—feels that Birmingham, Ala., Negroes are justified in staging mass marches and protests against segregation.

But Daily Record reporter attempting to interview citizens on the explosive question found most did not care to be quoted.

One who did, there was no area of agreement on whether the demonstrations should have been undertaken at this time or earlier.

But all agreed that the battle being waged by Negroes under the direction of Dr. Martin Luther King in an effort to get desegregation of public facilities and better job opportunities was justified.

Dr. King yesterday announced that agreements have been reached which will ease the situation, but state and local officials have indicated they intend to continue to enforce state and local laws requiring segregation.

Jury Deadlocked In Lippi Trial

LEWISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A federal jury of six women and six men began deliberations Friday on the fate of two Luzerne County mining companies and four individuals charged with corporate income tax evasion.

The case was given to the jury at 11:40 a.m., climaxing seven weeks of testimony and arguments in U.S. District Court.

The jury deliberated from 11:40 a.m. Friday to 12:10 a.m. Saturday with an hour out for lunch and dinner.

Presiding Judge William J. Nealon instructed the jury to return to the courtroom Saturday at 10 a.m.

Judge William J. Nealon delivered an 80-minute charge, instructing the jurors on points of law and evidence.

On trial are the Avon and Peely Mining Companies of Wyoming, Pa.; August J. Lippi, president of United Mine Workers, District 1; Robert L. Dougherty, Sr., former president of the two Corp.

The judge conferred with opposing lawyers for several minutes in chambers, then called court reporter Emily Cadden to the stand to read all the testimony of the two men.

Some of the male jurors appeared in the courtroom with ties off and shirts open at the collar. Some of the women had fans.

The testimony concerned the right—or lack of it—of Avon and Peely to claim percentage depletion during the period covered by the indictment.

Depletion is an allowance of 10 per cent of gross income but not more than 50 per cent of net income, granted under federal income tax for exhaustion of natural minerals such as coal or oil.

Defense attorneys argued that percentage depletion would have cut the taxable income of Avon and Peely to half of what the government says it was during the period covered by the indictment.

The government countered with the argument that Avon and Peely mined coal on land leased from Glen Aiden and therefore Glen Aiden was entitled to the depletion allowance.

Mrs. Cadden spent more than three hours reading the testimony of Everett and Bradbury.

Families In Court

All the defendants and some members of their families were in the sweltering courtroom for the judge's charge.

It was even hotter when the jury returned to open court at 2:25 p.m., after requesting transcripts of the testimony of William Everett and H. W. Bradbury, former officers of the Glen Aiden Corp.

The judge conferred with opposing lawyers for several minutes in chambers, then called court reporter Emily Cadden to the stand to read all the testimony of the two men.

Agreement Ends Birmingham Siege

Foreign Reaction

We Give Reds Race Weapon

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A biracial citizens committee agreed Friday on proposals to end Birmingham's segregation conflict.

Integration forces had kept the city virtually under siege since April 3.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., spiritual leader of the desegregation campaign, said the agreement reached provided the following:

1. Desegregation of lunch counters, rest rooms, fitting rooms and drinking fountains in planned stages within the next 90 days.

2. The upgrading and hiring of Negroes in a nondiscriminatory basis. This will include the hiring of Negroes as clerks and salesmen within the next 60 days.

3. Arrangements for the release of all persons arrested during racial demonstrations on bond or on their personal recognizance.

4. Communications between Negroes and white persons will be publicly reestablished within the next two weeks.

"We would hope that this channel will prevent the necessity of further protest demonstrations," King said.

Not Official

The agreement has no official status. In fact, city officials have issued strongly worded statements that they will not be bound by any agreement the biracial committee reaches.

Nevertheless, King has indicated he would call off demonstrations on the basis of the "good-faith" agreement, at least until the city has had a chance to consider the proposed settlement.

"I am very happy to be able to announce that we have come today to the climax of a long struggle for justice, freedom, and human dignity in the city of Birmingham," King said at a news conference during which the agreement was announced.

King recognized the fact that the agreement still was not binding on the city—"I say the climax and not the end, for though we have come a long way, there is still a strenuous path before us, and some of it is yet uncharted."

He called on the Negro community in Birmingham to accept the agreement calmly, with dignity and wise restraint.

"Emotion must not run wild," he said.

"As we stand on the verge of using public facilities heretofore closed to us, we must not be overbearing and haughty in spirit," King said. "We must now move from protest to reconciliation."

The city jail was fast being emptied of the Negro arrested during the demonstrations.

It was learned that the National Maritime Union, AFL-CIO, had sent a check for $32,692 to an organization of which King is an honorary chairman.

The city comptroller's office said $155,000 in U.S. Treasury bonds was deposited with the comptroller by bonding companies.

A city official said this permitted the signing of $237,000 in bonds of $300 each, enabling the release on bond of 700 persons.

Most of the demonstrators were arrested on charges which permit release on $300 bond.

One of the most thorny problems facing the biracial committee was the demand that charges be dropped. The demonstrators were jailed for parading without a permit, trespass after warning, failure to move on, or loitering.

Only 119 of the approximately 1,200 Negro juveniles arrested in the mass demonstrations which started last Thursday were still held. The rest have been released to their parents.

The prize money is expected to go to religious charities.

Step Forward For the South

WASHINGTON (AP) — The key federal official in negotiations to settle the Birmingham racial crisis said Friday night white and Negro leaders there have taken "a tremendous step forward for Birmingham and for Alabama and for the South generally."

Asst. Atty. Gen. Burke Marshall, who spent six days in Birmingham working for a truce between Negro demonstrators and the city's long history of racial tension will not end immediately.

"Emotion must not run wild," he said.

"As we stand on the verge of using public facilities heretofore closed to us, we must not be overbearing and haughty in spirit," King said. "We must now move from protest to reconciliation."

Look Tired

The pontiff looked drawn and tired as he walked into the throne room to receive his Balzan parchment and medallion from President Antonio Segni of Italy.

A relapse of last November's serious illness was said to have struck the Pope this week, and his appearance seemed to bear out the report.

The Pope John seemed to take on new strength and color as he spoke.

Rep. Edwin Willis, (D-La.), ranking member of the House Un-American Activities Committee, said the Pope was getting along well and will soon be back.

Rep. H. Allen Smith, (R-Calif.), called the Eastern Democrat "one of the most distinguished members of this body."

Similar wishes were expressed by Rep. James Roosevelt, (D-Calif.), who led the unsuccessful fight on the floor to kill Walter's bill.

Comments on the House floor came as it passed 340-40, without amendment, Walter's bill to tighten security in the National Security Agency.

Before a hour-long debate on the bill, a number of members of the House commented on Walter's illness.

Rep. William Colmar, (D-Miss.), chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee who has served in the House now in excess of 30 years and who is one of the highly respected members of the House I am sure that I express the wish and fervor hope of the entire membership that our friend the gentleman from Pennsylvania, Mr. Walter, may still recover and be back with us to continue rendering yeoman service for his country to which he is so devoted.

"I am concerned with the drought conditions," said Pat Walker, assistant to Deputy Master Robert E. Fish at the commission's Milford headquarters.

"At the present time there is no emergency forecast. Let's call the May 27 meeting 'preventional.' It was called to discuss eventualities and perhaps operational changes."

"The river is low," explained Alan Sommerville, Pennsylvania's chief water resources engineer. "We've got drought conditions all over, but there doesn't seem to be any emergency."

Walker said he was in the process of making up a water usage report and "right off-hand" I can't give you accurate figures."

Walker reported the river's flow at the Montague, N.J., gauge was measured currently at 2,900 cubic feet per second and has been averaging about 4,000 cubic feet at the gauge during the month of May.

The interstate compact regulating use of the river requires the parties to maintain a minimum flow of 1,325 cubic feet per second at the Montague station.

The Department of Forests and Waters here was advised that the reservoirs are at 46 per cent of capacity.

Scripture—Psalm 78: 12ff.

The psalmist named Asaph speaks and writes of the history of Israel, so that the coming generation may know God's wondrous deeds and follow Him, despite the sins of their forbears.—Psalm 78:1-8.

He recalls how God led His people out of bondage in Egypt, dividing the sea and bringing water from the rocks, making streams and raining down upon them manna, bread and fowl.—Psalm 78:12-15, 24-29.

Yet continually, despite the Lord's bounty to them, His people returned to their sinful ways, acting insincerely, rebelling against Him and even putting up graven images.—Psalm 78:32, 36, 52-58.

Continually, too, therefore, God had to punish His people, sending swarms of flies to devour them, and locusts and hail to destroy their crops.—Psalm 78:45-47.

Mother Mary Hildebrand, the Alverne's mother superior, says the Roman Catholic shrine draws persons of many faiths.

"Many office workers and executives come for a visit during the noon hour," she says, "just to get a little peace and quiet and have a place to meditate and give thanks."

Most guests of the hotel are elderly. The staff of 11 nuns provides recreation facilities of many kinds—ranging from pianos to pool tables.

The Catholic archdiocese of St. Louis, under Joseph Cardinal Ritter's leadership, acquired the building in 1966 and converted the 18-story structure into a residential hotel for men and women over 60. The shrine followed.

To remind people in the streets they could rest and meditate there, the archdiocese hung a huge illuminated life-sized crucifix by the glass doors. It has become a beacon to passersby.

When they have a moment from tending the hotel's 250 residents, the nuns have a resting place of their own. On the roof they have a panoramic view of metropolitan St. Louis. The muddy Mississippi River streams by a few blocks away.

"This place has brought many back to God," says Mother Hildebrand. "Young and old men and women—distressed souls everywhere—have sought an answer to their problems here."

The Bloodmobile, sponsored by the Monroe County Red Cross Chapter, will visit East Stroudsburg Methodist Church Monday from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

DeRenzo said the extra parking space will enable donors to "come in and move out fast" during the day-long project.

Forest Fire Danger At High Levels

STROUDSBURG — Maurice K. Goddard, secretary of the Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters, warned yesterday that forest fire danger throughout the state is "at exceptionally high levels."

He said the conditions would remain until a general soaking rain occurs.

Outside Burning Dangerous

General Robinson, district forester for Northampton, Monroe and Pike Counties, said, "The Thursday rain did not put an end to the fire season. It merely gave us a breathing spell. Any type of outdoor burning is still quite dangerous. We need a good soaking rain for two or three days."

Secretary Goddard said the number of fires this spring has already exceeded the 1,250 during the dry spring of 1962. But the areas burned are not as great, he said.

He credited reduction of burned acreage to increased use of airplanes and helicopters, dropping water and chemicals on forest fires and to efficient work by his department's fire control persons.

Program Needs Support

The visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile in East Stroudsburg this Monday poses a challenge to the people of the area. It is a challenge that must be taken up by the people if we are to continue the humanitarian service of assuring blood when and where it is needed immediately.

At the most recent visits of the Bloodmobile in the Stroudsburgs area, the donation of blood has dropped seriously below the assigned quota. To date, this has not had a detrimental effect on the availability of blood free from the Red Cross blood bank, but if it continues the program may be seriously hampered.

The donation of blood is a painless one, and takes only a few minutes of the donors' time. There are no after-effects, and the preliminary examination of the donor is actually a moderate check on his health. There's a hemoglobin check, blood pressure and temperature are checked, and any unusual conditions are referred to the doctor in attendance. This is mutual protection for both the donor and the recipient of the blood he may donate.

Important Gain For College Aid

The House subcommittee action in reporting out a college-aid bill limited to building grants and loans greatly increases the prospects of constructive Congressional legislation this year to meet the education crisis.

President Kennedy's one-package approach linking higher education with the controversial aid to public schools jeopardized the entire program without adding appreciably to the chances of passage for the public school proposals.

The House committee not only rejected President Kennedy's all-or-nothing concept but even left the question of loans to college students to be dealt with in later legislation expected to extend the present National Education Act. The result was to pare down the original $3,000,000,000 five-year plan to $1,195,000,000.

He Was Not Wronged

When J. Robert Oppenheimer, the wartime director of the Los Alamos atomic energy project, was named as the 1953 recipient of the government's Fermi award of $50,000 for outstanding work in atomic science, it was hailed in certain quarters as the vindication of a reputation.

According to the ADA—Americans for Democratic Action—Oppenheimer had been foully slandered back in 1954 when, by a 4-1 vote, the Atomic Energy Commission depaved him of access to atomic secrets on the grounds that he was a security risk.

This denial of security clearance, so said an ADA spokesman, was part and parcel of a "bad hangover of McCarthyism."

Since Dr. Oppenheimer has been spending his time in recent years meditating at Princeton on the moral climate of our times in mellowed isolation, this column has no desire to hurt him by bringing up old charges. But the imputation that the charming "Oppy" was a victim of "McCarthyism" is too much to pass without comment.

The fact is that the panel headed by educator Gordon Gray, which sifted the whole problem of Oppenheimer's behavior as head of Los Alamos, was the very antithesis of "McCarthyite."

"McCarthyism," over the years, has taken on the connotation of unjust accusation. But no investigatory body ever accused Dr. Oppenheimer of anything beyond muddying the waters when the FBI and the Atomic Energy Commission tried to get at the truth about his associations with certain old friends.

Oppenheimer was not called an "agent" or a "traitor," or anything like that. Indeed, the inference to be drawn from some 500 pages of testimony is that he was a political innocent, one of those "useful" innocents who, precisely because the don't know beans about questions of Marxism or the history of the Communist Revolution, have to be political innocents, it was assumed in "helping" him give the girls the message.

During the war, when the Communists were our allies, it could have been represented as the part of wisdom to make use of Oppenheimer's knowledge of atomic physics in order to push the atomic bomb to completion.

Speed was of the essence in those days, and questions of "security" vis-a-vis the Russians had not yet become obviously critical. But after 1955, when the Soviets were our newest enemies, the business of employing brilliant physicists who happened also to be political innocents could not be regarded in the rosy light of 1945.

The development of the hydrogen bomb was up for decision—and when Oppenheimer opposed the H-bomb program the members of the Atomic Energy Commission depaved him of access to atomic secrets on the grounds that he was a security risk.

The truth about Oppenheimer, as is emphasized in a forthcoming book by Ralph de Tolledo called "The Greatest Plot in History: How the Reds Stole the A-Bomb," is that he was a softie at heart, but just to please my husband I took lessons, and now I'm better than he is. Although we are usually partners, he resents me. He seems so happy when we lose. I think he purposely overbids his hand so we can't make it. I just don't understand him. We get along very well otherwise. So why does he get so mean and ugly the moment we sit down to play bridge?

There are many chemicals for rodent control that can be substituted for this particularly dangerous one.

The common practice of baiting rodents with bits of food covered with this poison is particularly hazardous to children, even when they are warned against it. Forgetfulness and temptation can bring on calamity. That thallium sulphate can cause permanent damage to the brain has been widely publicized by the National Institute of Health.

As for her estimates on the cost of living in town and in the country I think she had better go over the facts again. She lists costs her $49.28 a year to live in town. I think that is pretty darn high, compared to what it costs me to live in the country.

I am not running down East Stroudsburg as she does the country. I praise East Stroudsburg for progressing the way it is. If she wants to live there then let her and let her pay her share of things and keep quiet.

On her basic figures to own a $10,000 home in East Stroudsburg it cost her $449.28 yearly, where it cost me $160.12 to own a $12,000 home. I have no sewer rent, water rent and what she seems to be for the things that are happening in East Stroudsburg and she seems to praise the situation and then at the end of her article she seems to think that Mr. Sommers and his fellow board members may have a little trouble for reelection.

Pedersen's Chic Chicken, Lemon Bread, Top Tidbits

By Linda Pipher
Daily Record Home Economist

During the winter someone (can't remember who) said to me, "You should get some recipes from Joyce Pedersen — she's the most wonderful cook!" I couldn't let that go by, so I called Joyce and told her that her reputation for a hostess was wide spread through the area and wondered if she would share some recipes with us.

She told me she would be happy to do so but at that particular time she was busy with the Polio Foundation work in which she is very active, and when that was done, she was planning a trip to Hawaii.

Joyce called me when she returned from her trip; she had visited her niece in Seattle, Washington, when she and her husband, Olaf, were enroute to Hawaii. At a tea given by her niece, Joyce loved a lemon bread she served. It is different from any quick-bread she has ever been served, and thought that all of us would like to have the recipe.

Lemon Poppy Seed Bread

1 cup milk

1 tablespoon poppy seeds

2 cups sifted enriched flour

One-third cup sugar

1 tablespoon baking powder

1 teaspoon salt

2 tablespoons grated lemon peel

1 egg beaten

4 1/2 cup melted shortening or oil

Combine milk and poppy seeds.

Sift together flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. Stir in lemon peel.

Stir egg and melted shortening or oil into milk mixture.

Add to flour mixture stirring only until dry ingredients are moistened.

Turn into greased 4 1/2 x 8 1/2 loaf pan. Bake in a 350 oven about 1 hour and 10 minutes or until bread shrinks away from sides of pan.

Cool for 5 minutes before removing from pan. Cool thoroughly before slicing. A slight aging period will improve the flavor and it will slice easier. For teatime, spread thin slices with cream cheese or serve it plain with a dish of fancy butter curls so guests can butter their own.

Breasts of Chicken, Veronique

Breasts of two chickens, split and boned

Clear chicken broth

Dry white wine

Butter

Flour

1 egg

1 bunch seedless grapes or 1 can seedless grapes

Season breasts with salt and pepper. Melt 2 tablespoons butter

If You're Very Handy Work with Handicrafts

No matter how often we air the subject, every mail that comes to this desk brings more readers' questions on how to start a home job with handicrafts or hobbies.

Today an Ohio reader asks: "My mother would like to make a product that she can make and sell from her own home.

"Right now she's interested in artificial flowers for centerpieces and other arrangements. Do you think these items will sell? And if you do, how do you think she should start?"

A few letters later another note says:

"I want to make and sell handmade baby outfits. How should I go about this?"

Mother Writes

Still later a housewife and mother writes:

"I've just finished taking a hatching course, so now I want to know how to start making and selling hats right within a home workshop."

Basically, the way to start a home job with any handicraft or hobby, whether it's hats, flowers, baby items, candles, aprons, foods, sweaters, needlework or anything else is it's wrapped up in these five pointers:

1. Ask yourself whether you're doing what's thinking about your handicraft or hobby or whether you're really able to produce something people will want or need. Can you make it sufficiently professional so it can hold its own and look its competition squarely in the eye?

2. Do you know specifically where you'll be able to get the materials needed to produce your product? Do you know just as specifically where you can find markets?

3. After you've answered these questions, work out in your mind what you can do to give the product you want to sell some unique personal touch that will serve as

5. Get busy creating outlets and markets. Do this by advertising your services appealingly in small advertisements in local publications.

6. Take plenty of time and be knowledgeable and intelligent when you figure out price lists for what you'll have to charge to make your homework pay.

To get an initial price to work with, figure how much your time is worth, what your expenses will be and the profit you'll need. Then compare your prices with prices of similar products and ask people with business experience and judgment to give you advice on the matter.

7. Ask yourself whether you're doing what's thinking about your handicraft or hobby or whether you're really able to produce something people will want or need. Can you make it sufficiently professional so it can hold its own and look its competition squarely in the eye?

8. Do you know specifically where you'll be able to get the materials needed to produce your product? Do you know just as specifically where you can find markets?

9. After you've answered these questions, work out in your mind what you can do to give the product you want to sell some unique personal touch that will serve as

Masons' Duties Explored At Past Masters Night

BANGOR — Members and visitors of Bangor Lodge, No. 365, F. & A.M., heard William A. Carpenter, Librarian and Curator of The Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania, explore "service" applying it to Masonic teaching. More than 100 attended the meeting in Masonic Hall, Bangor, Thursday night.

Carpenter's address key noted the Lodge's annual observance of Past Masters' Night.

Carpenter stressed the duty of every Mason to accept individually the challenge that Masonry presents to its members to "do good unto all mankind." He emphasized the basic purpose of Freemasonry — the improvement and strengthening of the character of the individual man, and, through the individual, of the community.

Drawing upon the biblical parable of "The Good Samaritan," Carpenter developed three philosophies that man has the choice of following. The first, he related to the primitive inclination of refusing to share one's blessings with those less fortunate. He next depicted the individual who goes through life "wearing blinkers," and thus seeks to absolve himself of responsibility toward others. Lastly, he described the philosophy that "does not permit man to pass by." "This," he declared, "is the only one in accord with Masonic principles."

John D. Hamm, Jr., worshipful master of the Bangor Lodge, ben-omened the following past masters for their services to Masonry: T. Gordon Ditchett, Everett Kent, Morgan L. Kent, Edwin W. Young, R. E. LaBarre, George B. Sampson, Horace F. Kingman, Elwood Stoddard, William E. Long, Clarence H. Stout, William Fred Cain, Sherwood M. Gilbreath, David M. Thomas, David Stoddard, David H. Repsher, Carl Kressler, Warren R. Bonney, Bryden O. Strunk, Lewis R. Herd, Warren S. Kressler, Sherwood W. Luscombe, Theodore M. Hatter, Charles T. Heard, Jr., Richard E. Wells, Roy N. Henning, Edward J. Linaberry, Henry P. Williams, Russell L. Brown, Kenneth J. Ruff, Edward C. Linaberry, Carl T. Seal, Mervil F. Repsher.

Hamm, aided by Bryden O. Strunk, chaplain, and Edward C. Fisher and Joseph D'Imprio, masters of ceremonies, conducted a candlelight memorial tribute to the Lodge's 41 deceased past masters. Sherwood J. Hill was pianist for the remembrance service.

Among the distinguished masons present was the Honorable Earl S. Wallace, most worshipful past grand master of masons in the Commonwealth of Virginia. Wallace was chairman of the Conference of Grand Masters of North America held in Washington, D.C., in 1958. He is presently chairman of the Committee on Jurisprudence of the Grand Lodge F. & A.M. of Virginia.

Robert J. Rockefeller, a past master of Bangor Lodge, No. 325, Stroudsburg, and a 33rd degree mason was also a guest. Theodore M. Hatter, District Deputy Grand Master of Pennsylvania's 50th District also attended.

A Masonic Chorus, consisting mainly of former members of the Apollo Male Chorus entertained. It was organized by Everett J. Price, senior warden, and directed by William R. Brown. Hill was accompanist.

Refreshments were served by the stewards. George O. Yeller, chairman; Joseph Lewis, grand knight, presided.

Memories in the Making

A picture . . . a frame . . . to treasure always. So she believes!

The fleeting baby smile, the outgrown pair of baby shoes—these she'll always treasure.

But in later years not every mother can point with pride to her son's baby picture. Memories sometimes become tarnished with remorse.

So much depends on us.

If we hope always to treasure our glimpse of yesterday . . . we must carve with spiritual tools our vision of tomorrow.

3. Are you in favor of revision of the Pennsylvania State constitution?

Age: 62.
Education: High school.
Occupation: Promotional advertising.

Answers To Questions

Question One: "A senior inspector of Internal Affairs, Bureau of municipal government, Harrisburg, for 16 years, and a resort owner and operator for 30 years."

Question Two: "To promote and make Monroe County one of the finest urban counties. Give one of the best business administrations the county ever had and reduce for the tax payer if humanly possible."

Question Three: "I am in favor of amending the constitution to fit the present times when certain parts are outmoded."

Question Four: "Limited planning and zoning in any section when it is left up to the vote of the people and they have the privilege to serve the best interests of the community."

W. Adolph Rake, East Stroudsburg, RD 1.
Age: 58.
Occupation: Stockman in a printing firm in Monroe County.

Occupation: General contractor. Question One: "I feel that previous service as a commissioner in Monroe County will qualify me as a candidate for the office."

Question Two: "Complete plans for an addition to Monroe County Home and improvements to the present structure which were prepared eight years ago. I would try to render the same type of advance looking ahead in all phases of county management and to advance Monroe County to a higher place in the future."

Question Three: "Constitutional revisions should be carefully analyzed, keeping in mind, individual and community rights, protections of our original constitution. With available knowledge—in all fields of life today, local areas, under the guidance of community interest, can make wise decisions in the field of progress and growth, perhaps without, constitutional changes."

Question Four: "The 'modern' home is very flexible. So, with planning, as with individuals, selecting home sites, basic, and flexible county—and individual area planning evolved as each area analyzes it—future, should provide perspective, and planning that will fit the reality that will be. By 2000 A.D. Twice the population!"

Question Three: "To the extent that I realize the present constitution was written in the last century and does not adequately fulfill the present day need of the Commonwealth's affairs. Specific changes must be made, but these changes must be based on a local or home rule expression of the voters and must be accepted by them."

Question Four: "The voter's right to be heard must be paramount in any decisions on this subject. There are benefits and shortcomings of planning and zoning programs. The people who are investing their dollars in their homes in this community are the people who must be consulted before any action is taken. I will act only after I am certain that they have expressed their will."

With the new highways—and, hopefully, the new industries we will be able to attract because of them—Monroe County should experience the most fantastic growth in its history. We cannot afford to sit back and allow that growth to be indiscriminate. Some form of planning and zoning, therefore, is necessary."

Question Four: "The whole issue of planning and zoning—pro and con—is all too often caught in emotional and personal reactions. I am in favor of moderate and sensible zoning which will permit our boroughs and townships to progress, together, toward the kind of prosperity Monroe County should
